LE DIABLE

THE game dates its origin back to ancient China. It had another vogue in Rome at the time of Nero and was used extensively by the Roman dancers. Again we find an enthusiastic revival of it in France and England today. By many authorities it is ranked as an out-door sport with lawn tennis, golf and cricket, with which it compares favorably both in interest and exercise, afforded also with the additional advantage of being a game of deepest interest. THEATRICAL NOTES

American Singers in Grand Opera.
An article in a recent number of the Broadway Magazine by Elsie Lathrop, discusses the interesting subject, "New York Girls Singing in Grand Opera," and makes some astounding revelations in regard to the barriers which were formerly placed before the American singer ambitious for a grand opera career.

In writing of the career of one of the Manhattan Opera company, Miss Lathrop says that this New York prima donna was a member of the Metropolitan Opera House company under Maurice Grau, but was never given an opportunity to appear in an important role.

"She had," said the writer, "on a few hours' notice sung the role of Azucena to Emma Eames' Leonora in 'Traviata,' in Philadelphia, but notwithstanding her success in this, Mr. Grau had little confidence in American singers, unless they had long years of European experience. He once told a young applicant:

"If you had the most remarkable voice I had ever heard, no matter how much talent you showed, I would not engage you for New York unless you had appeared with success in Europe. Make an appearance there, no matter in how small a city, then come to me and I will see what I can do for you."

That that opinion has changed, however, is indicated by Miss Lathrop in her introduction. She says: "The term 'American voice,' which was frequently hurled at us, especially by our English friends, as a reproach, has of recent years taken on a new meaning. One eminent French singing teacher of world-wide reputation, Mme. Marchesi, actually waxed furious over the superiority which she cannot deny the American girls' voices.

"When Henry W. Savage inaugurated his English Opera company some years ago, the American girl had her first real chance to enter the grand opera field in her own country without having undergone years of foreign experience. Since then her opportunities have steadily increased until now each season's list of artists for New York numbers more and more Americans. It is interesting to note that many of the young singers who first appeared with the Savage company are now valued members of foreign opera companies."

Miss Lathrop's inquiry developed that the Empire state has contributed fifteen leading prima donnas to the world of grand opera. Five American prima donnas who gained their first recognition as members of the Savage Grand Opera company are now winning new laurels in Europe, while others are winning fame with those Florence Davis.

Florence Davis, one of the favorite stars, will be the attraction at The Kentucky Wednesday, January 15.

Several elements of the comedy drama enter into the composition of "A Question of Husbands." In fact, the plot and its picturing are very close to natural life and had they been so it is quite possible that an element of tragedy would have been added. If the sagacious husband of Cyprienne had failed in his purpose of diverting his wife from her folly, it is quite possible that he would have used some effective, if not finally settling arguments with the perfidious lover.

Florence Davis as Cyprienne is a typical woman of society. Her gowns are designed along exquisite lines and are models of the sartorial art. The mountings of the play—and these are owned by Miss Davis personally—give a thorough representation of the scenes they are supposed to represent. They are not mere stage settings, but for the most part an actual production.

The Davis company carries all the scenery and effects and no reliance is placed on the local stock material. Miss Davis relies little on the make-up. She is a fine looking woman, not only on the stage but wherever else she may be seen. But on the stage she enhances the value of her beauty by an adaptation of her genius, producing from two causes a double combination of effects.

Miss Davis still has that favorite leading man, Elliott Dexter, among her support.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's First Critics.
It is commonly said that the critic rarely discovers latent talent in budding historians. He is supposed to be so busily engaged in looking for faults that any real talent is overlooked. Furthermore, when a stage aspirant, without the customary training appears, the natural inference is that the tyro is an upstart and lacking in all those qualities which go to make a successful player. Temperament is so rare that to find it in a beginner seems out of the question.

Consequently, when it appears, as is sometimes the case at rare intervals, the critic can hardly believe his own eyes and is inclined to doubt his own instinct. But that genuine stage talent will be recognized, even under the most adverse circumstances, is instanced in the case of Mrs. Leslie Carter. Prior to the night of her debut as a star at the Broadway theatre on November 10, 1890, Mrs. Carter had never appeared before an audience. It is not too much to say that the critics went to the theater that night as to a Roman holiday. They expected, as they all admitted at this time, the usual fiasco. But here was a case where the unexpected happened. The criticisms make astonishing reading at this time. Nym Crinko said in the World that "Mrs. Carter is almost clairvoyant in her temperament, with a mobile face, capable of every shade of expression. It was conceded that she possessed a volatile talent of unmistakable force. In the pathetic bits, she evinced the true heart-beat, and was touching and tender without strain of affectation." It seems almost inconceivable that this was written of an actress who had never before spoken a line in public. Equally astonishing were the opinions of other writers. Franklin Fyles, then the critic of the Sun, said: "The debut of Mrs. Carter was not a fiasco nor a bare escape from a failure, not even a scant success, but the disclosure of an actress who rose into stage distinction with her first essay. Her first public performance was a remarkable performance." The critic do this the tobacco must be handled right. The association has never sold any tobacco before March and the first year the tobacco was not sold until September or almost a year after the tobacco was delivered to the prizer. Both Mr. Brown and Mr. Graham advised the farmers to deliver their tobacco to the prizing houses and promised faithfully that when it is received at the storage warehouses money will be advanced; but promises to the amount other than enough for the actual needs of the growers were not made.

Other Speeches.

Several other speeches were made during the afternoon session. John M. Allen, an association organizer, and Dr. W. W. Scott, chairman of the Cheatham county, Tennessee, executive committee, made talks. In speaking of the alleged attempt of farmers to break their pledges, Mr. Allen said that the only way for a member of the association to get out was to die out. He deplored lawlessness and stated that the depredations would not be laid at the door of the association. Mr. Allen said he believed Governor Wilson is a square man, but he has been misinformed.

At the conclusion of the speeches, the committee on resolutions reported the following which were adopted: "Resolved, By the representatives of the several precincts of McCracken county and the adjoining counties assembled in the city of Paducah, that the Planters' Dark Tobacco association of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, organized and incorporated under the laws of Kentucky by the planters and growers of tobacco for the purpose of bettering our conditions as growers and sellers of tobacco, realize the fact that the means and manner of marketing of tobacco prior to 1904 became unsatisfactory to the buyers of prized tobacco both at home and abroad. There, we, the growers of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, have determined to maintain a system of preparing and handling our tobacco in such a way that will establish a market just to ourselves and just to the buyer and under a guaranty sufficient to meet the requirements of the most exacting. We congratulate ourselves upon the success of our association up to the present. We have achieved more than expected and in view of the fact of the financial stringency is invading our country; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we favor the financial view taken by our banking establishments of Paducah and appreciate their aid to our storage houses in Paducah and assure them that there will be no trouble in securing insurance for warehousemen and prizers, both in and out of the city; that we deplore the lawless conditions existing in several counties and that we ask the legal authorities to maintain such investigation that will uphold the laws.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Editor of Evening Sun:

Now that the holidays are over and all the poor folks of the city have been so well cared for by the three organizations engaged in charity work in this city, I wonder if it has occurred to any of your readers that such a task could be better performed in a more quiet way by private hands. This thought has often occurred to me. For one thing I do not relish so much publicity in this charity work and think it could be done more cheaply with less system. From things I hear at intervals it seems to me especially in the case of the Charity club that there is more system than charity. Then, too, that organization, like the Salvation Army, is managed by a comparative stranger in the city. I have lived in Paducah for the past 25 years and it seems strange that we folks who ought to know our own town and its needs best should be able to look after its charities.

Then there are those who have for years been locating needy families and making these gifts direct without the expense of a second person or party. The churches and Sunday schools do lots of charity work and it seems to me this is the proper medium for those persons to use who cannot spare the time to hunt up needy cases and give direct help. This plan would do away with so much system and perhaps inject a little more love into the work.

Slapjack inhaled deeply, spat with disgust and looked over his boss incredulously. "Well, of all the different kinds of blame fools," he snorted, "you are the kindest!" He marched past the marshal and his deputies down to the cut, put on his coat and vanished down the trail toward town, not deigning a backward glance either at the mine or at the man unfit to fight for.

While nothing specific, in the way of adopting some plan to meet the financial situation, was developed at the meeting of the tobacco association here Saturday, the frankness with which the situation itself was explained to the planters, does much to clear it up. The speeches were all practical and the tone of the meeting was peaceable.

THAW CASE REJUVENATED.

Lawyers intend to handle the Thaw case this time, and we are promised a revision of the lines and situation of this real life drama that, as a press agent might put it, "will make it as unique and fresh this season, as it was last." It is very kind of the counsel, too, for it makes all the pictures "good." While Evelyn's recital, which was the most admired feature of last year's production of the Thaw scandal, will be again in the hands of the "same capable" actress, dressed, presumably the same "simple gown of some flimsy stuff," it will be remembered that in deference to the wishes of Madam Pittsburg Thaw, who relied too sincerely on her wealth and social position, incidents in Harry's career, which had been matters of newspaper notoriety at the time of their occurrence, were originally omitted by the defense. At that time the argument of the defense was that Harry Thaw had been made mad by the recital of Evelyn's wrongs, and aggravated by Stanford White, had killed him. The dementia was temporary, only lasting long enough to render Harry irresponsible for the deed, and leaving him sane enough afterwards to go about his business.

The weakness of this absurd defense, undoubtedly concocted by the Thaws themselves, was apparent, and Jerome kept the defense hopping back and forth from proof of Harry's insanity when he killed White, to defense of his sanity afterwards. The result was that the jury was divided between Evelyn and her "story" and "simple gown of some flimsy stuff" on the one hand, and the fact of Harry's guilt on the other.

All defense of Harry's sanity now will be thrown to the winds, and he will have to take chances on the asylum for the criminally insane. That is proof that he has found a lawyer, who is sane about his own reputation and not insane about his fee.

Evidence will be introduced in support of the theory of insanity, that Wedding of Miss Agnes Sullivan and Mr. Oliver, of Paris, Tenn., January 28.

Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Sullivan announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Agnes, to Mr. Henry Madison Oliver, of Paris, Tenn. The wedding will take place at the Broadway Methodist parsonage, 199 North Seventh street, Tuesday evening, January 28, at 8:30 o'clock. The rites will be solemnized by the father of the bride. There will be no cards issued.

Miss Sullivan is the eldest daughter of the Rev. G. T. Sullivan and Mrs. Sullivan. She has been in Paducah only since the last of November, when her father assumed the pastorate of the Broadway Methodist church, but has won many friends by her sweet and gracious charm of womanliness. She combines attractiveness of personality with that of mentality and is a talented musician.

Mr. Oliver is a leading young business man of Paris. He is the head of the drug firm of James & Oliver of that place, and is a young man of exceptional ability and popularity. After February 1 he will be associated with Dr. S. H. Winstead in the drug business of this city.

The couple will make Paducah their home.

To Visit in Paducah.

The Washington correspondent of the Sunday Courier-Journal says:

"The most interesting southern event of the week was the marriage of Miss Katherine Taylor, the attractive young daughter of Senator Robert L. Taylor, of Nashville, to Mr. Hillsman Taylor, a young Tennessee lawyer, and newly-elected member of the legislature. The ceremony occurred Wednesday afternoon at the Elbitt House. From Kentucky among the guests were Senator McCreary, Mrs. Kitchen, of Hopkinsville, who is spending the season at the National hotel, and Mrs. Ayres."

Mr. Matthew Hillsman Taylor, the bridegroom, is a brother of Mrs. W. B. Mills, 2000 Jefferson boulevard, Paducah. He is a prominent young lawyer of Trenton, Tenn., and was a notable member of the Vanderbilt football team when attending Vanderbilt University. His bride is the youngest daughter of Senator Taylor and a girl of much attractiveness and talent. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will arrive this week to visit Mrs. Mills, en route from their bridal trip east to Trenton.

Paducah Young Man Marries Chicago Girl.

News of the marriage of Mr. Ralph Butler, formerly of this city, to Miss Belle Miller, of Chicago, has been received by Mr. and Mrs. A. Butler, 326 Clements street. The letter contained no details beyond the information of the marriage, and that they were in St. Louis.

Mr. Butler is a popular young man of this city. He was graduated from the high school in 1904 and after gaining experience in local drug stores, he studied pharmacy in the University of Valparaiso, Ind., and was graduated last August. He spent a month with his parents, and in October went to St. Louis, where he is in charge of a drug store. He met his bride when at Valparaiso.

PREPARING FOR A DRY SUNDAY WHEN CAPTURED.

Calmly walking into the jug house of Sam Sparks, 120 South Second street, Saturday night, an unknown young man picked up a case of whisky from the front of the store and walked out. The proprietor's attention was called to it, and he began a chase after the young man and the case of whisky. The young man had it on his shoulder when accosted by the proprietor, and after the case had been returned to the saloon the proprietor agreed not to prosecute him. The young man was a stranger but evidently he was preparing for a "dry" Sunday, as the case contained a dozen quarts.

The Clyde ran through herself Friday night about 250 miles up the Tennessee near Hamburg, and got in this morning on one engine. The bolts in the follower head gave way and this knocked out the cylinder head. She will be repaired and leave Wednesday for the Tennessee.

The Jim Wood got up the Ohio as far as Hurricane Island, on her way to Louisville with a tow of empties, and had trouble with her boilers and was compelled to come to Paducah Saturday night and be repaired. The trouble was "bag-boiler," caused by scales collecting on the inside of the boiler and allowing the fire underneath to make the boiler red hot in that place, permitting the pressure of steam to make the boiler swag and crack if not attended to immediately. She was fixed and got away early Sunday morning.

The Margaret got away for the Cumberland this morning after ties. The Joe Fowler got in from Evansville last night and got away at noon for the same port.

The Blue Spot went up the Tennessee after ties.

The Russell Lord arrived from the Tennessee Saturday night with ties, Youth's Companion.

The Harth went to the mines at Caseyville after a tow of coal for the West Kentucky Coal company.

The Memphis News-Scimitar says: "Fire, starting about 8:30 o'clock Saturday night, completely gutted the dredge boat Henry Flad, of the government fleet, stationed about one mile below the Memphis bridge. Officers of the fleet say it is impossible to estimate the loss until it is ascertained whether the boilers have been damaged, but they place the minimum at $50,000, while the maximum is in the neighborhood of $175,000. There was no insurance. Every particle of woodwork on the vessel was consumed by the flames. The boat was burned to the water's edge, only the steel hull remaining. The cause of the fire is not known, and probably never will be, as when it was discovered the boat was already enveloped in flames, and there was no means of ascertaining just where the blaze started."

Old Time Packets.

Edward Edwards, of St. Louis, has a directory which gives the names of boats and their masters that ran out of that port in the fifties. It was published in 1854. Following is a partial list:

Louisville—Packets—Telegram No. 3, Ermin, master; Crystal Palace, Kountz, master; Fashion, Church, master; Lady Pike, Catterlin, master; Hoosier State, Lampton, master; Southerner, Jones, master; J. C. Clinch, Hite, master.

Memphis Packets—I. S. Chenoweth, Johnston, master.
Nashville Packets—Sallie West, Throop, master; Altonia, Miller, master.
Keokuk Packets—Jennie Deans, Johnston, master; Westerner, Able, master; Die Vernon, Ford, master.
Cairo Packets—Alton, Harbison, master; Walk-on-the-Water, Williams, master.

Just Think of That!

Mistress—Nora, did you wash Fido? Nora (just over)—Sure, I did, but I had the devil's own time gettin' him starched and ironed.—Bohemian Magazine.

Hot Air Fan.

An interesting German invention is a fan driven by hot air, and so simple in construction and economical in working that it is said to compete very successfully with electric fans. The hot air is generated by a kerosene lamp holding a quart of oil. A small glass chimney on the lamp fits into a large metal chimney which conducts the air current to the engine driving the fan. The speed of the fan is regulated by turning the flame up or down. The whole apparatus weighs about 30 pounds.

The Reason.

"My son is going to be either a great financier or politician."
"Does he take an interest in such things?"
"No, but he's got to make a living somehow, and he just won't work."—Utica Observer.

All Sign Pledge.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 13.—The great wave of temperance sweeping northward from the south has struck the west, and one of the results is that the Northwestern railroad system of 10,000 miles has gone "dry," 40,000 employees of the road having sworn off.

On the last night of 1907 the employees of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, reaching from the Great Lakes to the Rocky mountains, became absolute "teetotalers" and signed a pledge to that effect. And each man pledged himself to use his personal influence toward securing the signatures of others who have not yet agreed to quit the use of intoxicants.

When the Northwestern railroad began reducing its force to the regular winter basis this year the orders were that the drinking men were to be discharged first, no matter how competent they were, and that the temperance men were to be the last to go. It set the men to thinking.
